SOWINGS

"Bird by bird, buddy.

Just take it bird by bird."

We had the opportunity to get refreshed, recharged and learn something new at this year's ELS/SELS Youth Services Retreat at Camp Carol Joy Holling. On the agenda for Thursday, due to a youth services grant from Nebraska Library Commission, was Judy Freeman – who provided us with some great information and lists of Children's books from 2005-2006 – along with activity ideas and suggestions of ways to use the books. (Meaning a 90+-page handout – whoo!) A few online resources shared by Judy were:

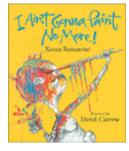

- Mimi's Motifs, at: www.mimismotifs.com for reversible storytelling dolls, hand puppets, finger puppets and more.
- A Fuse #8 Production Check out this blog for a review of a children's book each day, interesting tips and links, as well as the Hot Men of Children's Literature: http://fusenumber8.blogspot.com/.
- Or participate in LM_NET on the web at: www.eduref.org/lm_net/ – a discussion group open to school library media specialists worldwide, and to people involved with the school library media field.
- Take a look at Esme Raji Codell's website at: http://planetesme.com/. It's described as a place where you'll find reviews, thematic lists and much more. It includes a link to the PlanetEsme Book-A-Day Plan: The Best New Children's Books from Esme's Shelf (http://planetesme.blogspot.com/).

• Or go to No Flying No Tights – at: http:// noflyingnotights.com/ - for graphic novel reviews for teens, and Sidekicks, a site devoted to kids graphic novels, and the Lair featuring graphic novels for older teens and adults.

Here are just a few of the ideas Judy shared:

• Have youth talk about book characters from different books that might be best friends. Her example of this was the characters from No David by David Shannon and I Ain't Gonna Paint No More by Karen Beaumont and David Catrow.

- When doing displays, display books you've read and loved with your guarantee of a good book. So, you end up personalizing your recommendations by giving the Ealey Guarantee or the Freeman Guarantee or the Puchalla Guarantee.
- When reading a book think about who the characters are, and what they sound like.
 Find a voice for the story – "politicians have great voices if you're looking for a voice."
- Don't ask yes/no questions when you're talking with kids about a book or story.
 You're trying to engage them, not give a test, so open-ended, who, what, why, where, how questions.

The second of the 2006 Nebraska Rural Poll results was released in August. "Newcomers in Nebraska's Rural Communities," focuses on how rural Nebraskans view new residents in their communities and their expectations regarding population growth in the community during the next decade. Some of the key findings from the 2,482 responses received back are:

- · Almost two-thirds of rural Nebraskans are aware of new residents living in their communities.
- · Rural Nebraskans have mixed opinions on the impact new residents have had on their community.
- Just under one-half (49%) of rural Nebraskans say more people should be encouraged to relocate to their community.
- · Many rural Nebraskans believe new residents tend to become home owners, join a church and attend community events.
- Residents of the Panhandle are more likely than persons living in other regions of the state to agree that new residents improve the quality of life in their community.
- Newcomers to the community are less likely than longer term residents to agree that new residents to their community are made to feel welcome and that the community does a lot to include new residents.
- Persons living in the Northeast regions are more likely than persons living in other regions of the state to say that new people moving into their community has been bad for the community.

- · Over one-half of rural Nebraskans expect the population of retired persons and immigrants in their community to increase over the next ten years.
- Persons living in or near larger communities are more likely than persons living in near smaller communities to think the populations of each of the groups will increase over the next ten years. The entire poll can be found at cari.unl.eeu/ruralpoll/new_residents.pdf

*Note— Ask yourself how newcomers are greeted in your community. Are they made to feel welcome, does the library do a good job of promoting itself to new residents? Does the library have materials in other languages?

Jack Prelutsky was named the Nation's First Children's Poet Laureate, a two-year post, with a $25,000 award, courtesy of the non-profit Poetry Foundation. His work spans nearly 40 years and 35 volumes. So, now is the perfect time to celebrate his work, and if you've never enjoyed it as a child or an adult, take some time to explore his poetry. In an article by Karen Glenn at poetry-foundation.org she says: "Prelutsky writes what kids like, whether it's scary poems about trolls and bogeymen, or funny ones about worm puree and bananacondas. Yes, he knows how to have fun and makes boatloads of puns, but Prelutsky is more than a tall, clever child. He is a real poet who knows as much about form, rhythm, and rhyme as he does about burned meatloaf, umbrellaphants, and preposterpusses. He also knows about feelings and, for lack of a better word, soul."

Here's a sample of his work – just for fun:

As Soon as Fred Gets Out of Bed

As soon as Fred gets out of bed, his underwear goes on his head. His mother laughs, "Don't put it there, a head's no place for underwear!" But near his ears, above his brains, is where Fred's underwear remains.

At night when Fred goes back to bed, he deftly plucks it off his head. His mother switches off the light and softly croons, "Good night! Good night!" And then, for reasons no one knows, Fred's underwear goes on his toes.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer asked Prelutsky how children's poetry has changed over the years: "I've been collecting children's poetry books for a long time. The stuff from the 19th century was largely dreadful. Either it was moralistic and didactic or it was a greeting-card verse with no substance at all. Writing for children was kind of an afterthought. It had little to do with children's lives as they really are; it was some idealized world. But children are flesh and blood. They're just like us, only smaller. I write about the things kids care about."

Check out the fun second the annual Friend Chix Extravaganza held on October 14th, support the Gilbert Library. Friends of the Gilbert Library organized the event, which included delicious brunch and silent auction. Leach, Lincoln City Libraries, was the featured speaker for the event and book talked some of her favorite adult titles the ALA's from

Reference & User Services Association (RUSA) Notable Books list, as well as a couple of favorite titles for youth:

- Souls Raised from the Dead by Doris Betts, 1994.
- Shockwave: Countdown to Hiroshima by Stephen Walker, 2005.
- River Town: Two Years on the Yangtze by Peter Hessler, 2001.
- A Lesson Before Dying by Ernest J. Gaines, 1993.
- Last Days of Summer by Steve Kluger, 1998.
- A Girl Named Zippy by Haven Kimmel, 2001.
- She Got Up Off the Couch by Haven Kimmel, 2006.
- Criss Cross by Lynne Rae Perkins, 2005.
- The Hello, Goodbye Window by Norton Juster, 2005.
- Wild About Books by Judy Sierra, 2004.

We are excited about our new technology at Lewiston Consolidated Schools this school year. Our card catalog is now online through Library World Online Library Service. We received a mobile lab with 20 wireless laptops through the REAP grant. We are also using Renaissance Place which is the online version of Accelerated Reading, so our students are able to test on all AR tests.

Author, Chris Crowe will be visiting Lincoln Public Schools on November 9th & 10th. He's the author of Mississippi Trial, 1955 – a Golden Sower Award winner, as well as Getting Away with Murder: the True Story of the Emmett Till Case. Crowe's visit will coincide with Lincoln High's theatre performance of the Emmett Till Case, an original play written by Lincoln High Drama teacher, Chris Maly. Lincoln Public Schools District office is hosting, MOSAIC, the largest display of multicultural literature in the area through Friday, November 10th. The display includes African, African American, Asian, Asian American, Hispanic, Hispanic American, Middle Eastern, Native American, and multiple cultures in the US, as well as globally. If you can't make it to the display to view the titles and pick up a copy of the bibliography we have a copy at the SELS office.

ISBN Change from 10 to 13

The International Standard Book Number (ISBN) is a unique identifier assigned to every published book and book-like product. It provides a standard way to identify book in global trade. Starting January 1, 2007, the International Standards Organization is changing the length of the ISBN from 10 to 13 digits in order to expand the numbering capacity and prevent numbering shortages from occurring in certain parts of the world.

We the People Bookshelf: Pursuit of Happiness

The American Library Association (ALA) and the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) would like to invite your library to apply for the fourth annual We the People Bookshelf grant!

This year, we are offering 2,000 sets of classic books for children on the theme the "Pursuit of Happiness." To apply, simply complete the easy online application by describing how your library will create a theme-related program that highlights the Bookshelf titles. Applications are due by January 31, 2007.

Selected libraries will receive all 15 titles in the Bookshelf, plus four of the titles in Spanish translation, a bonus CD, bookplates, bookmarks and posters to promote local programming.

Guidelines and the application are available online through January 31, 2007. For programming ideas and tips, access to the guidelines and application, book titles, and further details, visit www.ala.org/wethepeople. With questions, contact publicprograms@ala.org.

Try Fiction Connection

Since last April, the Nebraska Library Commission has made available at no charge a new reader's advisory service electronic database — Fiction Connection. If you were unable to attend training either at a Database Roadshow or other training sessions or would just like more training, NLC now has developed two new Fiction Connection tutorials available through Nebraska Access:

NLC now has developed two new Fiction Connection tutorials available through Nebraska Access:	•
Fiction Connection Lesson 1: Finding books that are similar to books you've already read and liked.
Fiction Connection Lesson 2: Identify all book in a series and the order in which to read them.
The tutorials are available at: www.nlc.state.ne.us/nebraskaccess/tootlbox/tutorials.html.
To view these you will need Macromedia Flash Player 6.0 or higher. It can be downloaded free.

OCLC Language Sets

OCLC Language Sets can help you build collections in 13 non-English languages. Altoona (Iowa) Public Library and Seattle (Washington) Public Library use the service to help meet the demands of their culturally changing communities.

An analysis of Census Bureau data shows that the U.S. foreign-born population reached a record 35 million in March 2005. The data also indicate that the first half of this decade has been the highest five-year period of immigration in American history.

To serve these rapidly growing communities of diverse ethnic groups, libraries need to offer non-English materials but often lack the expertise to select and catalog non-English titles for their collections. OCLC Language Sets can help.

Language Sets allow English-speaking librarians to build multilingual collections. Books are cataloged in full MARC format and arrive ready to shelve, with holdings already set in World-Cat. Languages available are: Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, Gujarati, Hindi, Japanese, Korean, Panjabi, Russian, Spanish, Tamil, Urdu and Vietnamese.

Read how two public libraries use Language Sets for their needs at: www5.oclc.org/downloads/design/abstracts/10092006/languagesets.htm Learn more about Language Sets at: www.oclc.org/languagesets/. Or for more information contact: Christa Burns, OCLC Member Services Coordinator at Nebraska Library Commission, (800)307-2665 or (402)471-3107 or cburns@nlc.state.ne.us.

If You Build It . . .

On October 11th, the University of Nebraska at Omaha dedicated the Dr. CC and Mabel L. Criss Library and Dr. Gunter Kahn Addition. Here are some facts about the new addition:

- 31,000 square feet of new space
- $6.5 million budgeted for construction and furnishings
- 14 months from groundbreaking to occupancy
- 9 group study and seminar rooms
- Cafe with seating for up to 70
- 436 new study seats
- Lighted shelving for 50,000 books
- Jun Kaneko ceramic sculpture weighs 2300 lbs
- Nearly 200 additional network computer connections
- Wireless connectivity throughout
- 3600 square foot Readers garden
- Unique shelving system for 2,800 journals and magazines

One of my favorite remarks during the ceremony came from James B. Milliken (President, University of Nebraska) when he quoted Shelby Foote – "A university is just a group of buildings gathered around a library." That's wonderful sentiment considering that when the University of Omaha was founded in 1908 it was without a library, until in 1912 when University president Daniel Jenkins responded to student requests to found one.

2006 Nebraska Book Awards

The Nebraska Center for the Book recognizes and honors books that are written by Nebraska authors, published by Nebraska publishers, set in Nebraska or concern Nebraska. The 2006 winners are:

Anthology - Slamma Lamma Ding Dong: An Anthology of Nebraska's Slam Poets, editors: J. M. Huscher, Matt Mason, Dan Leamen, iUniverse, Inc.

Children/Young Adult - The Nebraska Adventure, by Jean A. Lukesh, Gibbs Smith.

Cover/Design/Illustration – These Trespasses, by Jim Reese, The Backwaters Press.

Fiction – This is Not the Tropics, by Ladette Randolph, University of Wisconsin Press.

Nonfiction – Impertinences: Selected Writings of Elia Peattie, a Journalist in the Gilded Age, by Elia W. Peattie, edited by Susanne George Bloomfield, University of Nebraska Press.

Nonfiction Honor Book – Rainmakers: A Photographic Story of Center Pivots, by the Groundwater Foundation.

Poetry - No Accident, by Aaron Anstett, The Backwaters Press.

The Nebraska Center for the Book is housed at the Nebraska Library Commission and brings together the state's readers, writers, booksellers, librarians, publishers, printers, educators and scholars to support programs to celebrate and stimulate public interest in books, reading and the written word.

The System office currently routes Professional Journals to help everyone keep up on the low down. Ideally we look for a 4 day viewing period after you receive the journals in the mail, before you mail it on to the next person. I hope to have them out monthly or bimonthly as they are issued. The only cost to you is postage to mail the journals to the next name on the list or back to the System. You may join the routing list at any time or be removed at any time.

The journals that are available are:

School Library Journal-focus on Schools; news, techKnowledge, and reviews (monthly)

Bookbag-Literacy ideas for teachers; ideas and activities to help with reading and vocabulary (6x/yr)

Book Links-Connecting books, libraries, and classrooms; sections: classroom connections, spotlight on the stars (reviews), book strategies, in the trenches, author focus, points of view and talking with (bimonthly)

Booklist – reviews with a different focus (history, sports, romance) each issue; sections: adult books, books for youth, media, and reference books bulletin (2x monthly September-June and monthly in July and August)

Library Sparks – engaging activities to reach every reader; activities, programs, and a monthly calendar with literary notes on each day (9 issues)

American Libraries –Magazine of the American Library Association-news and items of interest (11 issues)

Library Journal- reviews, news, infotech, commentary (monthly)

LMC (Library Media Connection) – the magazine for School Library Media and Technology specialists; tips from your colleagues, copyright question of the month, reviews (7x/school year)

VOYA (Voice of Youth Advocates) - the library magazine serving those who serve young adults; reviews of young adult material and news-all things YA (6x/yr)

ROAD TRIP 2007

Libraries: Launching the Future NMLA/MPLA 2007 Conference Albuquerque, NM March 14-16, 2007 www.nmla.org/abq2007/confhome.htm

Don't fret, you didn't miss a road trip! The third trip to MPLA is

March 13-17, 2007

This time, it's Albuquerque! 47 people will board a bus, they will be divided into teams and will compete to be the last one on the bus. Wait, sorry that's not right-though it does sound kinda fun. The bus would leave from Nebraska on March 13th and arrive back on the 17th. Like previous years, the bus will start in Omaha and go along I-80 picking up riders. We had 34 riders last time. Use the bus trip to network with your peers, catch up on your sleep, finish that book, or watch a movie. But most of all, use the bus to get to one of the favorite regional conferences for FREE or nearly FREE! That's right, thanks again to a grant* from the Nebraska Library Commission, there will be no cost for the bus ride. Riders may be charged up to $20 a person to cover the driver's transfer fee and lodging, but there will be no overnight lodging this trip. Albuquerque isn't any further away than Jackson Hole, so sign up and discover the bus!

Conference highlights include: Keynote speaker Dr. Joseph Janes, Library Journal columnist and Associate Dean of the University of Washington library school; Michael Wallis, noted historian talking about the history of Route 66 and the making of the Disney/Pixar film Cars (he was the voice of the sheriff of Radiator Springs!); author Jane Lindskold, author of the Firekeeper Saga and Child of a Rainless Year; and Kathy L'Amour, wife of the great western author, Louis L'Amour.

So sign up today to join Road Trip 2007!

Please let us know your serious interest as early as possible, so that if we need to reserve a larger bus we can!

Sign up deadline: February 23rd, 2007

Visit the SELS website (www.nlc.state.ne.us/system/sesys.index) for a brief summary of each book. The players are available for loan to SELS libraries that would like to try them out in your library. Each comes in a carrying case with ear buds, battery charger (the battery will last around 14 hours) and easy to follow instructions. There is no charge for borrowing a kit for a one-month loan period, but borrowing libraries will be asked to sign a loan agreement. Check it out to your customers to see if downloadable audio books are a service you should be offering to your library customers. Call the System office for more details.

- * "Readers need a reason to turn the page which is great advice for writers."

A title she mentioned for adults that perhaps we should all put on our fall reading list is Bird by Bird: Some Instructions On Writing and Life by Anne Lamott. The title of this missive comes from the book, and Judy used it as advice for busy librarians with way too much that we want and need to do, and most especially way too much to read.

Here are Judy Freeman's favorite author and illustrator websites, a list that is by no means comprehensive, but showcases sites that go beyond the usual biography and description of published books to offer assortments of interviews, games, Reader's Theater scripts, or lesson plan ideas. Some are flashy and fun; others just contain excellent, useful information.

The annual SELS planning retreat was held in the morning at the Seward Memorial Library. The board then had lunch and reconvened at Saint Gregory the Great Seminary hosted by the seminary's librarian, Terry Nollen.

Agenda

- I. What's New Around the System: President Elton called the meeting to order at 2:05 pm. Becky Baker talked about the Nancy Pearl action figures for sale and the Pitch Tournament the SELS Friends are sponsoring as a fundraiser on Sunday, Sept 10. Tom Schmitz reported that the Regional Center is changing its programs and staffing. A new adult program will be started. He is also working on the SELS Friends upcoming fundraisers. Ken Gunselman reported that the library at York College has acquired two new psychology databases and also Academic Search Premier. Wanda Marget reported the purchase of a computer with grant funds and also an encyclopedia set. Lisa Olivigni reported that the "Hang Out & Read" program has just ended and the Nebraska Humanities funded "Prime Time Program" for family literacy is about to start for six weeks and includes discussions based on children's books. Scott Childers talked a little about his work at the University Libraries at UNL. Glenda Willnerd reported that there have been nine position changes in the Lincoln Public Schools' Media Centers. Mosaic, a multi-cultural literature display is opening Oct 4 and will be available for review until Nov 10. Children's author, Jacqueline Woodson will also be at the LPS offices on Oct 4. Karen Frank reported that her library had the biggest circulation on record in June/July. Kris Rogge reported that the TUFS group is working on holding a series of "dinner & discussion" programs at four locations throughout the state discussing city governments and libraries. Rebecca Bernthal noted that the UNL's fall semester begins August 21. Jan Thomsen reported that they are merging the ready reference section into their non-fiction section. There is a new media center person at the high school that is eager to work with the public library. New software was purchased for the library from Follett. Preschool story time will begin in the fall. Sandy Elton reported that all institutions now have WESTLAW, funded with at grant, except for the Nebraska State Penitentiary. The library at the Residential Treatment Center is slated to close January 2007.
